Building a Unified Homeless and Housing System in 2014

The Homelessness Task Force (HTF) is a regional coalition of community partners with an interest or concern about those who are served by or who serve in the homelessness system.

In 2014, the Kansas City region will work towards building a more unified system.

The expected outcomes include: community agreement and commitment to common principles, strategies, protocols, metrics and training; coordinated system entry and assessment tools; and a shared data information system.

Management Information System: Web-based "cloud" technology will be necessary to effectively implement and monitor the metrics of a unified system at individual, agency, county and regional levels.

Rapid Re-Housing moves homeless persons into scattered site housing within the community before providing any services. It assists people with mid-range needs and is temporary.

Transitional housing provides programs and services to all levels of need, along with temporary housing in scattered site housing or congregate living. Upon completing programming, participants are assisted into permanent housing.

Permanent Supportive Housing houses high- to severe-need persons in scattered site or congregate living before providing services. It is partnered with intensive case management or assertive community treatment.

Common Assessment and Coordinated Access

A common assessment tool standardizes service prioritization, which allows for the most efficient use of resources and improves consumer access to support. Coordinated access makes the system easier to navigate by leveraging the strengths of individual service providers.

Housing Triage

Housing Triage helps the community "yield" to more vulnerable individuals by focusing limited resources on the most appropriate people or families using a standardized assessment tool and set protocols. This tool assesses level of acuity (or vulnerability) and prioritizes the most effective housing option.

Services as determined by the common assessment tool are still available for these at-risk individuals and families, even if they were diverted from the housing system.

Services Ahead

Diversion and Prevention is a standardized strategy that prevents homelessness for people seeking housing support by helping them stabilize their current situation or identify immediate alternate housing arrangements. If necessary, they are connected to services and financial assistance.

The center, which is in Wilmer, is named after the judge who launched DIVERT at a time when it wasn't exactly a popular idea among his judicial colleagues.

Psychologists evaluate candidates for the program to determine their substance abuse or drug addiction and what, if any, psychiatric problems they might have.. " About two-thirds of people who enter the program complete it successfully. "I was doing something vastly different from what was going on and it was at night, it was extra work," said Creuzot, who retired as a judge last year and is now a criminal defense attorney.. Sanction Court is our primary diversion program The process provides an opportunity for a face-to-face contact with every first time youth offender and a parent.. "I just saw my future [as] really, really bleak," Chavez said "There was nothing that I saw for my future as far as outside of the jail walls.

The court is for people facing a first-time state jail or third-degree felony drug charge.. That means Chavez’s felony case is dismissed and his arrest can be expunged It isn’t easy, but it’s an increasingly common alternative form of justice that experts say is a key factor in recent prison population declines here and nationally.. The program includes a judge, attorneys, case managers and counselors whose aim is to help people overcome addiction, rather than punish them for their mistakes.. It’s a volunteer role in addition to his day job as a Dallas County felony court judge.. It was summer 2011, the 22-year-old Dallas man had been on probation for drug-related cases for years, and, after a few more arrests, he picked up his first felony drug charge.. “We’re catching people on the very front end, before they ever have a record,” said state District Judge Robert Burns, who has presided over the weekly court sessions since January 2012. b0d43de27c Best Computer Printers For Mac
